

Approximately 20.1 million people with a migration background live in Germany.

83% of people with a migration background live in just six states.

But in only three states are more than 40% of people with a migration background eligible to vote.

So, across Germany as a whole approximately 7.6 million people with a migration background are eligible to vote.

In a 598 seat Bundestag this translates to approximately 96 seats being elected by people with a migration background.
